We have had a variety of weather the past week. Rain, sunshine and cold.

Minnie McMahon left Wednesday on the Str. Harmonic for a lake trip to Duluth.

W. H. Taylor and family, of Detroit, are spending the week among Yale relatives.

Henry Vannest, of Peck, made the Expositor office a pleasant call last Saturday.

Flax is being harvested and hauled to the mill of James Livingston Flax Company.

Mrs. Howard B. Elliott, of Denver, Colo., is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lewis.

Several fine rains during the past week have been of much value to the growing crops.

Victor Learmont is now occupying a position in the Yale State Bank, Scott lales having resigned.

Mrs. Fred Lewis, daughter Gladys and son Robert are visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lewis.

Maurice Merrill, of Detroit, visited Yale relatives and friends from Saturday till today, Thursday.

L. G. McDonald, of Brown City, was in Yale Monday afternoon on a visit to his mother and friends.

W. H. Learmont and family motored to Almont Sunday and spent the day with relatives and friends.

The cut stone for the new M. E. church has arrived and workmen are busy laying it in the building.

Mrs. J. A. Menzies and family and Dorothy Ripplinger, of Detroit, camped at Cedarwood over the week-end.

Yale Main Street is decorated with pennants advertising the Chautauqua to start in this city Friday, Aug. 18.

George Stabileford has been under the weather the past week, but is again at his post in the Woolen Mills office.

Elder Wilson will preach his farewell sermon at the Free Methodist church next Sunday evening. A cordial invitation to all.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Andrae and children spent Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Noble in their cottage near Marine City.

Mrs. Hattie Hisey came up from Wayne Saturday and spent Sunday at Cedarwood. Mrs. Jenks, of Port Huron, accompanied her.

Harry Holden, daughter Nina, son Rensley, of Yale, and Mrs. Pearl Maddeaux, of Cincinnati, are in the McIntyre cottage at Cedarwood.

Wm. F. Ruh and family, Fred Taylor and family motored to Port Huron and down the river points Sunday. This is a very pleasant and enjoyable drive.

A member of the state tax commission has been working making assessments on farm property in this section of the county during the past three weeks.

Alf Pratt and family, Al Knisley and family spent part of last week with Rev. Saxbee and family at Genesee. They also motored to Flint, Pontiac and Detroit.

T. J. Minnie brought to this office last Saturday another stalk of corn grown in the fourteen acre patch on his farm spoken of last week which measures 8 ft. 11 in. Can anyone beat this?

Superintendent Green has put the grounds around the power plant in a neat and tidy condition. The lawn has been graded, seeded and rolled. Next spring we expect it to be a beauty spot.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Daykin, who have resided in Yale since November last, moved to Chelsea Tuesday of this week. It is with regret we learn of their leaving but the best of good wishes for future health, happiness and prosperity go with them.

Arrangements to boost the Chautauqua, which starts on Friday of this week, were made at a meeting of the Citizens' Improvement Club held at the Council Room Tuesday night. Seven decorated autos were sent out Wednesday afternoon to the towns surrounding Yale selling season tickets.

The Marlette Leader gives account in last week's issue of the beautiful home wedding of Lucille Ostrander and George W. Fox, of Detroit. Miss Lucille is the daughter of Rev. and Mrs. W. S. Ostrander, who were residents of Yale some years ago, Rev. Ostrander being pastor of the M. P. church. She was well liked and popular among the young people of Yale, who offer congratulations and best wishes.

The following people spent Sunday at the McMahon home, southeast of the city:—Rev. F. Carroll, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Porter, Mr. and Mrs. Will Sturdevant and children, Mrs. Needham, Misses Alice and Catherine Needham, Maude McGarry, Mr. Smith and Harry McGarry of Smith's Creek, Marjette Buck, of Detroit, the Misses Elizabeth, Irene and Madelyn Dawson, Gerald Dolan and Jay Dawson, of Columbus, Harold Mackay of Detroit, and Rev. F. Melling, of Yale.

Two small fires created some excitement in our city this week. The first happened on Monday afternoon in the rubbish heap at the north of the Yale Garage and for a time threatened considerable damage to adjacent property, but our hose companies were soon on the spot and put out the blaze. Marjette's sign board was warmed up and damaged slightly. Wednesday afternoon J. L. Rosenthal's awning in front of his clothing store caught fire from a lighted match or cigar stub thrown into it. Quick work on the part of the fire department stopped the fire before it could spread.

Health News

Lansing, Aug. 14.—A new talking point has been discovered for encouraging cities to grow—the fast growing city is likely to have less tuberculosis than the town whose population is increasing slowly. At least that is the conclusion reached by investigators who compared conditions of Cincinnati and Cleveland. The latter is growing rapidly in population, the former slowly; the latter has a lower tuberculosis death rate than the former.

The investigators believe that this state of things is due to the fact that in the rapidly growing city the tenements and shacks are giving way to buildings of a newer type because the tenements and shacks no longer pay when real estate increases in value because of the rapid growth of a city.

There are in Michigan, numerous cities which, like small boys, are trying to get big, and the theory of the Ohio investigators will give the population boosters another argument: "Help your town grow and by so doing help along the fight against tuberculosis."

But like most theories, this one must be taken with a grain of salt. The statewide tuberculosis survey of the Michigan State Board of Health. For, after all, it is being pointed out there is no assurance that the rapidly growing city will replace the poorer buildings that harbor tuberculosis with buildings that are more likely to remain free from the disease. In the State Board of Health survey it has for instance frequently been discovered that buildings are being put up that repeat all the mistakes of old buildings and that pay little or no attention to providing sufficient light and ventilation.

Where that is the case a rapidly growing city is likely to have more tuberculosis than its slower sisters. And this leads to the suggestion that all cities, large and small, should have adequate building ordinances that will require builders to take health into consideration. Comparatively few Michigan cities have such an ordinance now.

John Stanley, of Melvin, is in Yale today on business.

The gypsies are here today. Get your fortunes told.
